Meet me at the Carnival Networking Event

I am a traditional sweetie, which also comes with different names and I am typical for this time of the year. My fatty, fluffy dough is filled with marmelade, vanilla or chocolat cream.

My name is Berliner in most parts of Germany apart from Berlin. In Berlin they call me Pfannkuchen. In Bavaria they call me Krapfen and in Rheinhesen they call me Kreppel. You name me!

Just don't call me donut ;)

More Tradition

Carnival has different origins depending on the region, but means basically the preparation for fasting time from „Aschermittwoch“ until Easter (about 40 days). In Bavaria people dressed as witches want to chase bad ghosts of the dark season out of town and bring spring back.

In Rhineland Carnival has a strong literary-political component and the colorful uniforms are a parody of the military.

Other important carnival regions are Rio in Brasil, Québec in Canada, New Orleans Mardi Gras in USA and of course Venice in Italy.
